4/2/91

Dear Steve,

Thanks for the media guides and your note with them.

The Sox play the Orioles at a time when you might find a visit a bit more interesting. I've checked the schedule. Day games the 19th and 20th, Saturday and Sunday.

And it happens that a man who has become a friend, the third man wounded in the JFK assassination, is coming on the 19th. His name is Jim Tague.

By coincidence that will be just after our birthdays. We'll then have, between us, 169 years. Bill's 85th is the 19th. Mine is 10 days earlier.

I suspect that Bill Weichter, a wonderfully fine person, may be up to somet ing. Neither he nor his paralegal responded to my request for her to return the dozen chapters of the epilogue to Waketh the Watchman because I can get that done in a week locally now.

Makes me think, especially with their silence on this, that maybe Bill is having it retyped.

If he is he'll probably remember you.

Thanks and our best,

Harold
